

Recommendation for Ayah Assaad Liljekvist

To whom it may concern,

I have had the pleasure of working alongside Ayah Assaad Liljekvist at Vollmers for about two and a half years, and I am more than happy to write this letter.

When she told me she was moving into software engineering, I wasn't surprised at all. She has always loved solving problems, learning complex things quickly, and explaining them in a way anyone can understand. Those are exactly the qualities I would want in anyone building something that matters, and I know she will bring them to her new career.

She started with us as a server, and I watched her grow into a host, then a sommelier, and eventually a restaurant manager. That kind of journey happened because she is curious, works incredibly hard, and never stops learning. She was always looking for the next step, and always wanted to become better.

I admire how well she handles pressure. On our busiest nights, when everything had to run perfectly, she was the calm one, seeing problems before they happened and quietly making sure everything ran smoothly. The team trusted her, and so did I.

Her passion for wine made her a Krug Champagne ambassador, and we trusted her to represent Vollmers at private events in Val d'Isère and Verbier. She made us proud every time.

Whoever gets to work with Ayah next is lucky. Feel free to reach out if you'd like to hear more.

Warmly,

Elin Malmberg
